Voice & Video Readiness Assessment

Collaboration technology is one of the single most significant investments that an organization can make. Is your IT infrastructure ready to handle the your Unified Communications & Collaboration (UCC) solution?

Problems discovered during implementation can cost 30-50x more to resolve than those found during the planning phase. And with a Voice & Video Readiness Assessment, you can assess your entire IT environment quickly and easily.

Service Overview

Utilizing a Software-as-a-Service (SaaS) network infrastructure analytics tool, a technical architect will gather detailed information regarding the ability of your network infrastructure to support voice and video traffic. Basic service includes eight customizable traffic simulations to cover all aspects of voice, video and data.

A detailed report of recommendations including both programmatic and infrastructure improvements will be provided including:

- Network and infrastructure diagram
- List of devices that are End-of-Life (EOL)
- Licensing report
- Critical interfaces report
- Bill of Materials (BOM), if requested

Additional options may be added for:

- "Full Mesh" testing
- Cisco Unified Communications (UC) reports
- Deployment services
- Training

Would your IT infrastructure fall under one of these statistics?

73% of organizations have correctable performance problems.

47% of organizations have storage latency performance problems.

47% of organizations have VMware deployments that have CPU oversubscription.
